

AMERICAN INDIAN CULTURE AND RESEARCH JOURNAL

SPECIAL EDITION CALL FOR PAPERS

UNSETTLING COLONIALISMS: Settler Colonialism and Indigenous Resistance in Global Context

This special edition of the American Indian Culture and Research Journal will bring together key writing on the histories, politics, and cultural discourses mobilized in the millennial global struggle between Natives and invaders.

The collection will interrogate settler categories, including the category of settler colonialism itself. It will provide a space for Indigenous epistemologies to counter settler hegemonies, including established scholarly discourses on settler colonialism. It will critically engage with colonial discourses of conquest and Native alternatives alike. It will aspire to the kind of hard-nosed analytical rigor that can enhance the political options available to Indigenous groups.

We invite abstracts for articles between 5,000 words and 10,000 words in length. Articles will be pithy and focused. They will aim to make a difference.

Abstracts please by June 30th to: wolfepatrick101@gmail.com

Publication schedule:

- September 1, 2012: Manuscripts due for peer review
- January 20, 2013: Revised manuscripts due
- June 1, 2013: Issue appears in print

I look forward to reading some outstanding abstracts.

Patrick Wolfe
Guest Editor